Home-School Connection

Dear Family Member:

I'm reading African-American Inventors in class this week. I'm learning to see how things are the same and different. In this book I can see how each of the African American inventors helped our country in different ways. Growing peanuts, inventing folding beds, and finding a cure for blindness are just some of the things they have given us. All of the inventors work hard. They are all alike in that way.

Queridos familiares:

Esta semana estoy leyendo en clase African-American Inventors. Estoy aprendiendo a ver cómo las cosas pueden parecerse o ser diferentes. En este libro puedo observar cómo cada uno de los inventores afroamericanos ayudó al país de diferentes maneras. El cultivo de cacahuates, el invento de camas plegables o el descubrimiento de una cura para la ceguera son sólo algunas de las cosas que nos han brindado. Todos los inventores trabajan arduamente. En eso, todos se parecen.
